1. Introduction

As a postgraduate student, you are typically required to take the equivalent of four full unit courses each year as prescribed by your programme regulations. You should, however, check your regulations carefully to ensure you aren't required to take more. All of these courses (whether compulsory or optional) will need to be selected using LSE for You.

This guide will take you through the process of course selection. It includes advice on how to find out more about courses, understand your timetable, and deal with any special circumstances that may arise.

Course selection is managed in different ways by different departments, so you are advised to consult this guide in conjunction with the Course Selection and Timetables pages in your Department or Programme Handbook and any other information provided by your home department and the department(s) teaching the courses you are taking.

Further information can also be found on Student Services Centre's Course Selection Webpages.

Throughout the guide you will see two symbols which are designed to alert you to common problems or tips on good practice.

The orange caution icon indicates something that is recognised as a common problem or misconception with the course selection and timetabling process.

The green star icon indicates good practice in course selection. These are suggestions of things that might help you in the course selection process.

Help us to improve these guides...

We're very keen to make these guides as useful as possible. If you spot an error, identify an omission or would like to suggest an improvement please provide us with your feedback.

2. Key Dates

Postgraduate students will be able to browse (but not select) courses from 10am on Monday 18 September 2023.

Course selection for postgraduates will be open from 10am on Thursday 21 September until 5pm on Friday 6 October 2023.

Course selection will reopen from 10am on Monday 15 January until 5pm on Friday 26 January 2024 to allow changes to be made to Winter Term half unit courses.

3. Glossary of Key Terms

LSE for You (LFY): One of LSE's administrative portals. You will select your courses on LSE for You during the course selection windows outlined in the Key Dates section, above.

Moodle: LSE's virtual learning environment, where course materials and lecture recordings are shared, you can submit work and engage with lecturers and seminar teachers. This is separate and distinct from LSE for You.

Calendar: An online platform that gathers all regulations relating to students and their study. It contains the programme regulations and course guides you will use when choosing your courses.

Terms: Periods of teaching into which the academic year is split. Autumn Term runs from September to December, Winter Term runs from January to April, and Spring Term runs from May to June.

Courses: Individual modules of study that form part of a degree programme, for example EC402 or HY411, are called 'courses'. Normally the teaching for a course will consist of a lecture and a seminar group, but this will vary. The two letters in a course code indicate which department teaches the course, and the first number indicates the level of study. For example, EC402 is a postgraduate course in the Department of Economics.

Unit: A measure of course value. Assessed courses carry a unit value of either one full unit or one half unit.

Programme: A full MA or MSc degree comprising of all units studied. For example, MSc in Economics or MSc in Sociology are both programmes.

Compulsory / Core: A course that must be taken.

Elective / Optional: A course chosen from a list of options.

Prerequisite: A requirement you must fulfil in order to be able to take a course.

Controlled Access: A course which has limited places and/or prerequisites which are required in order to take it.

4. Finding Courses

Before you start

Before you start selecting courses on LSE for You, you should complete online pre-enrolment or re-enrolment as appropriate.

You can activate your LSE network account during pre-enrolment. You will then be able to log into LSE for You to select your courses. You do not need to have completed campus enrolment to select your courses.

You are strongly advised to attend any induction and/or advice sessions hosted by your department (or departments if you are on a joint programme) before selecting your courses. These information sessions will provide you with guidance about the course selection processes specific to your programme. You will receive information about these sessions from your department.

Using the LSE Calendar

The LSE Calendar is an online resource that, among other things, contains programme regulations and course descriptions for all courses taught at LSE. You can use the Calendar to:

- 1) Check your programme regulations as they will tell you which courses are compulsory for your programme, and which optional courses you might be able to choose.
- 2) Read the course guides to find out more about every course including teaching arrangements, academic content, assessment, readings, and survey results from past students. You can also view introductory course videos by following the links in the course guides.

Finding out more about courses

In some cases, you may also be able to view course content from previous years by enrolling on courses on Moodle.

To find and self-enrol on a course on Moodle:

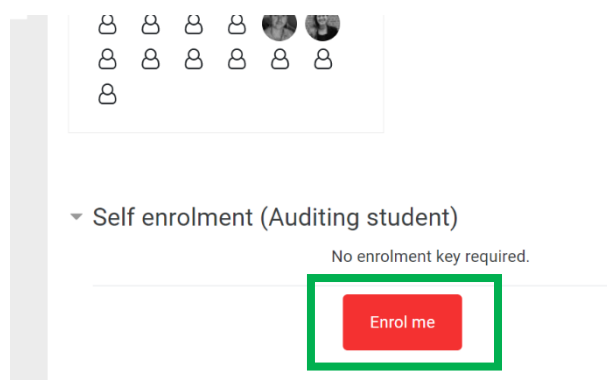

- 1) Log in to Moodle with your LSE username and password.
- 2) Click on the search button at the top right of the page and type the relevant course code or course title into the search bar that will appear.

- 3) The course you have searched for should then appear in the search results. Click on 'View' at the bottom of the appropriate search result.

- 4) Scroll to the bottom of the course page and click 'Enrol me' to self-enrol as an auditing student.

Some courses may not allow self-enrolment or may require an enrolment key. For assistance in self-enrolling on such courses you should contact the department responsible for teaching the course.

Enrolling on a course on Moodle is not the same as selecting a course on LSE for You. You can be enrolled on a course on Moodle, but not formally registered on the course.

Viewing the LSE timetable

The School-level timetables can be viewed on the Timetables webpage.

There are two School-level timetables, published at different times:

- 1) The Lecture & Seminar Timetable is published in mid-August. This shows the times of all lectures and seminars only. Access does not require an LSE login.
- 2) The Timetable viewed by course code is published in mid-September. This shows all lecture, class, seminar, and workshop timetables. Access requires an LSE username and password.

Together, these timetables show the dates, times, and locations of all teaching for every course and for each week of the Autumn, Winter, and Spring Terms.

You should make use of the School-level timetables when choosing your courses. They can help give you an idea of what your personal timetable might look like when it is generated, and also help you identify any courses it may not be possible for you to take due to timetabling clashes.

Understanding controlled access courses

Many graduate courses are designated as 'controlled access' due to limited places and/or prerequisites that are required to study the course. To gain a place on a controlled access course you must apply and be accepted by the department running the course.

You can find information about controlled access courses, how applicants are selected, and deadlines for applying on the controlled access courses page.

Remember that, depending on your programme, it is advisable to have a few "back-up" optional courses in mind in the event of you not gaining a place on one or more of your preferred courses.

If you do not secure a place on one of your preferred courses, it may be possible for you to audit the course.

Auditing is an arrangement whereby you enrol on the course via Moodle and attend the lectures for the course, but do not undertake any assessment for it. It is allowed with permission from the course leader. If you are interested in auditing a course, you are advised to discuss this with your Academic Mentor in the first instance.

5. Selecting Courses

On LSE for You

When choosing courses, you will only be able to request the number of units required to fulfil your programme requirements. This means if you require four units for your degree you will only be able to request and/or receive offers for courses up to the value of four units.

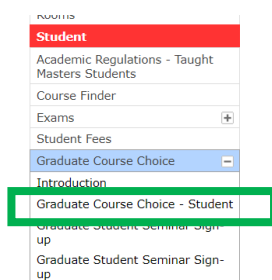

If you have chosen courses up to the total number of units required for your degree, you will need to withdraw requests or drop courses you have been accepted onto in order to select more or different courses.

You can re-enter the system and change your selection of courses as many times as you like during the course selection windows and you may not need to make all of your selections in one go. Academic departments can operate differently and places on popular courses can be filled quickly so do get advice from your home department – and other departments where you are interested in their courses – as to how you should proceed.

To select a course:

- 1) Log into LSE for You using your LSE username and password. While LSE for You will work on a mobile device it is much easier to use a computer or laptop.
- 2) Expand the 'Graduate Course Choice' option in the left-hand menu and select 'Graduate Course Choice – Student'.

- 3) If you try to access course selection during the 15 minutes before it opens, you will be placed in a virtual waiting room. All students in the waiting room will be allocated a place in the queue when course selection opens and the message they will see while in the waiting room is below:

Course Selection Waiting Room

Course Selection in LSE For You (LFY) will open for continuing undergraduate students at 10am UK time on Monday, 17 September 2024, 10:00 AM.

You are currently in the waiting room until Course Selection opens.

When Course Selection opens, you will be allocated a place in the virtual queue so you can access Course Selection as quickly as possible.

If you experience any technical difficulties with accessing Course Selection once it is open, please contact tech.support@lse.ac.uk.

The event will begin at: Monday, 17 September 2024, 10:00 AM

06 Minutes 58 Seconds

Status last updated: Monday, 17 September 2024, 09:58 AM

- 4) Either when it opens or a later point, if the queue is in operation and there is a high volume of students trying to access course selection, you may be placed in a virtual queue. Students who are in the queue will see the below message until they have reached the front of the queue and are able to make their course selections:

The screenshot shows a webpage with the LSE logo at the top. The main heading is "You are in the queue for Course Selection". Below this, there is a paragraph explaining that the user has been placed in a virtual queue to manage access during high demand. It states that the user will be alerted when at the front of the queue. A recommendation is made to keep the browser open. It also mentions a 60-minute wait time and a 60-minute window to enter course selection once at the front. A contact email, tech.support@lse.ac.uk, is provided. Below the text is a progress bar with a red section and a small white figure icon. At the bottom, it says "Status last updated: 10:48:00 GMT".

LSE

You are in the queue for Course Selection

You have been placed in the virtual queue to help manage access to Course Selection at a time of increased demand. You will be alerted on this page when you are at the front of the queue and can begin selecting your courses.

We recommend keeping this page open in your browser until you can enter Course Selection.

You may need to wait in the virtual queue for a short time before you can access the system.

Once you are at the front of the queue, you will have 60 minutes in which to enter Course Selection.

If you experience any issues with accessing Course Selection, please contact tech.support@lse.ac.uk.

Status last updated: 10:48:00 GMT

- 5) If you have reached the front of the queue, you have 60 minutes to enter course selection. If you take longer than 60 minutes to enter course selection after reaching the front of the queue, you will see this message:

The screenshot shows a webpage with the LSE logo at the top. The main heading is "Your queue number is no longer valid". Below this, there is a paragraph explaining that queue numbers are valid for 60 minutes and that the user's queue number has expired. It instructs the user to click a button to get a new place in the queue. A link for "More details" is provided. At the bottom, there is a red button labeled "Get a new place in the queue". The footer contains a queue ID and the text "QUEUE.IT".

LSE

Your queue number is no longer valid

Queue numbers are valid for 60 minutes. Unfortunately, your queue number has now expired. Click the button below to get a new place in the queue.

Graduate Course Choice - Student

- To help you decide which courses to choose you can use the Course Finder application.
- A Guide to using Course Choice and Seminar Sign-up is available here.

Please read these notes carefully before selecting courses for the current session and refer to the FAQ for further details.

Course selection

Students are required to make their course selection online via LSE for You (LFY) by 5pm Monday of week 2 of the Michaelmas Term.

Michaelmas Term Course Choice:

- You will not be able to select or change course(s) online after Monday of week 2 of the Michaelmas Term. In exceptional circumstances only, departments may agree to a late course change after this deadline, please get in touch with the Programme Administrator(s) in your home department directly.

Lent Term Course Choice:

- From Monday of week 1 of Lent Term, course choice will re-open to all students so that you can make changes to Lent Term half units by 5pm on Friday of week 2. It is not possible to change full unit courses or half unit courses which were taught in Michaelmas Term during this period. After Friday of week 2 of Lent Term, the system will be switched off permanently and course changes are no longer possible.
- The specific dates applicable to the current session can be found on the Course Selection webpages.
- You must choose courses as specified within the programme regulations in LSE's Calendar for your year of entry. You should be able to access the regulations relevant to your programme by clicking on the regulation link on the course selection page.
- You should register for all the courses in which you will be assessed (i.e. all courses with unit value and which are counted towards the overall award of the degree) in the current session, including compulsory courses, optional courses and dissertations. Please ensure that you register for no more than the total number of courses required.
- You will be automatically registered for your compulsory courses which are pre-selected on the course selection page.
- If you change your programme after you have been automatically registered for the compulsory course(s) for your old programme, and these compulsory courses are not applicable to your new programme, you will need to drop these courses when you log on the graduate course choice system for the first time after the programme change has been processed.
- If you are a part-time student, you should de-select the courses that you will not be taking in the current session to avoid being automatically registered for these courses by the system.
- Some courses are designated by the department offering the course as 'controlled access', either with or without a cap. When this happens, you will need to apply to the teaching department via the online course choice system for permission to take the course before you can register for it. Please do not assume you have a place on a controlled access course until you have been officially informed of this and accepted the offer. If you do not accept the offer within 48 hours it will automatically expire and you will lose the place. You will not be able to sign up for a seminar until you are registered for the course.

- 7) Students who are inactive within LSE For You after 20 minutes will be logged out of LFY. Once in course selection, students who are logged out owing to being inactive and then try to return may have to queue again if the queue is still in operation.
- 8) Click on the 'select or drop courses | accept or decline offers | withdraw requests' button.

- 12) You will then be presented with a page containing boxes in which you can write statements in support of your applications to courses. There will be a larger box at the top for a programme-level statement, and smaller boxes below this for individual course-level statements.

For courses that are compulsory for your programme it is not necessary for you to write course-level statements, but if you select a non-compulsory controlled access course, a course-level statement may be required. It will often be specified in the course listing on LSE for You if a course-level statement is required, and you can find full guidance on what you need to do to apply for each controlled access course on the controlled access courses page.

The purpose of the programme-level statement is to explain why you have chosen the courses you have selected. The programme-level statement will only be seen by your Academic Mentor, and you are strongly advised to provide a programme-level statement if you have chosen courses outside of your programme regulations.

You will be automatically enrolled on a controlled access course in Moodle within 15 minutes of accepting an offer.

Towards the end of the course selection period your academic department may check your overall course selections to make sure you have selected the right number of courses and that they align with your programme regulations.

This can be done by your Academic Mentor or another member of staff. This final check has no impact on whether you get a place on controlled access courses, when your timetable is published, or when you are enrolled onto courses on Moodle. You should not rely on staff to pick up any issues with your course selections: it is your responsibility to make sure you select the correct number of courses and that they align with your programme regulations.

When offered a place on a controlled access course you must act quickly, as offers expire after 48 hours. Do not hold onto offers unnecessarily as you may be preventing someone else from getting a place on a course.

Given that you can only select the number of units you are required to take for your degree programme, you should think carefully about which courses you wish to select and should drop any you no longer want to take.

Withdrawing requests, declining offers and dropping courses

You can withdraw a request to take a controlled access course on LSE for You before ('withdraw request') or after ('decline offer') you have received a decision from the teaching department, or 'drop' the course after you have registered on it. You can do this using the same button you clicked on to select your courses:

To drop a course you are registered on, you should tick the box next to the course you wish to drop under the 'Make Changes to Course Choice' section on the next screen, before clicking 'Save' at the bottom of the page:

When you drop a course, you will be presented with your programme-level statement and be provided with the opportunity to edit it before returning to the main screen.

Waiting Lists

If you apply for a place on a controlled access course, the teaching department may place you on a waiting list if they do not accept or reject your application in the first instance. If a place subsequently becomes available on the course, they may then send you an offer of a place.

There is no guarantee that you will receive an offer for a controlled access course if you are placed on a waiting list. You can refer to the controlled access courses page to find out more information about each department's course allocation methods.

If you are placed on a waiting list for a course, the course will still count towards your overall course selection count. This means that you will need to drop a course if you have already requested the total number of units required for your programme and would like to select an alternative course.

6. Seminar Sign-Up

Some departments allocate students to seminars, and other departments allow students to sign up to seminars themselves. You can see which method is used for each of your registered courses in the Seminar Sign-Up system.

Seminar Sign-Up can be accessed through the course selection pages on LSE for You. You can use Seminar Sign-Up once you have selected a course and the department responsible has made the course available for Seminar Sign-Up.

To sign up for seminars on Seminar Sign-Up:

- 1) Login to LSE for You using your LSE username and password.
- 2) Expand the 'Graduate Course Choice' option in the left-hand menu and select 'Graduate Student Seminar Sign-Up'.

- 3) The page which then opens will show which of your courses are open for students to sign up to seminars. Click on a course for which you would like to sign up to a seminar, and click 'Fetch'.

Back to course selection screen

Once you have selected a seminar, click 'Save' at the bottom of the page.

- 5) Click 'Back to course selection screen' and repeat the process for any other courses offering student Seminar Sign-Up.
- 6) You can withdraw from and change any seminars individually by re-selecting a course and clicking 'Fetch'. This will again take you to the page displaying available seminars for the selected course.

If you fail to sign up for seminars during the allocated time, the teaching department may allocate you to a seminar group on your behalf.

7. Your Timetable

On LSE for You

Individual student timetables will be published at 10am on 22 September 2023 for Autumn Term, and in mid-January 2024 for Winter Term. You can access your timetable by logging into LSE for You and clicking the 'Student Timetable' option on the left-hand menu.

For your personal timetable to be generated you will need to have:

- 1) Selected your courses, including compulsory courses, in LSE for You.
- 2) Selected your seminars, where necessary, using Seminar Sign-Up.
- 3) Fully enrolled for the current academic year.

In the first three weeks of Autumn Term there can be changes to the timetable, so you should check your timetable daily for any updates.

Student Hub

Student Hub allows you to view your timetable on your mobile, tablet and computer. If you sign up for Student Hub, when your personal timetable is published on LSE for You it will automatically sync to your in-app calendar.

Your timetable will appear on Student Hub on 22 September 2023.

Student Hub is available on iOS, Android and laptop/desktop.

8. Special Circumstances

Requesting to take courses outside LSE (selecting Intercollegiate Courses)

In exceptional circumstances you may be allowed to take courses offered at other University of London institutions; this is known as intercollegiate study. To register for a course outside of LSE, you need to:

- 1) Complete the form available on the Taking a Course Outside of LSE webpage. Your department will need to approve the request.
- 2) Request and complete the relevant registration form for the other University of London institution, obtaining the necessary approval as indicated on the form.
- 3) Submit both the LSE and the other institution's registration form to the Student Services Centre. A member of the Student Services team will sign and return the form to you, and you will then need to submit this directly to the other institution.

Within 5-10 working days, the outside course will appear on your course selection list on LSE for You.

It is your responsibility to ensure that you abide by the other institution's course registration deadlines, as they may refuse your application if submitted late.

Timetable clashes

A timetable clash occurs when two or more of the courses you have selected have teaching (be that lectures, seminars or workshops/help sessions) scheduled at the same time. While LSE makes every effort to avoid clashes, due to the number of optional courses available on some programmes, it is not always possible. You should avoid selecting courses and/or seminars that create timetable clashes, seeking guidance from your Academic Mentor if you need advice on selecting alternative courses.

It is your responsibility to check for (and avoid) timetable clashes. You cannot use a timetable clash as evidence of Exceptional Circumstances.

Late course change

You should complete your course selections in advance of the system closing on Friday 6 October 2023.

However, in exceptional circumstances, it may be possible for you to make changes after the deadline. If you think you may need to make changes after the deadline, you should contact your home department to discuss this further.

No course changes to full units or Autumn Term half units are possible after 5pm on 13 October 2023. Requests to change course selections after this date will not be approved.

Lent Term Course Change

You will be able to make changes to Winter Term half units in January 2024, when the LSE for You Course Selection system re-opens to postgraduate students. It is not possible to change full unit or half unit courses that were taught in Autumn Term during the Winter Term course change period.

To make changes to your Winter Term half units, log in to LSE for You using your LSE username and password and follow the instructions in the Selecting Courses section of this guide. The process for changing courses is the same in Winter Term as it is in Autumn Term.

No course changes to Winter Term half units are possible after 26 January 2024, and it is not possible to change full-unit courses or half unit courses that were taught in Autumn Term during the Winter Term course change period.

9. Key Contacts

Any questions you may have about the course selection and timetabling processes should, in the first instance, be directed to staff in your home department. Consult your department's website or handbook to find the appropriate people to contact.

If staff in your department are unable to resolve your query, you can also make use of the following contacts:

For questions about the course selection process on LSE for You: contact the Student Exams and SSC Support team at one of their daily Course Selection drop-in sessions. Drop-In Sessions will run from Wednesday 6 September – Friday 6 October 2023. Sessions will take place via Zoom three days a week, Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays from 14:30 - 15:30. You can also contact the team via the enquiry form, choosing the options that most accurately describe your question from the dropdown lists.

For questions about timetabling: contact the Timetabling Team via the enquiry form.

For questions about course content: contact staff in the relevant teaching department(s), or the teacher responsible for the course, as stated on the relevant course guide.
