

Exams for other institutions

In almost all cases LSE is, unfortunately, not able to administer proctor or invigilate exams set by other institutions.

The only exception to this policy are:

- Exams which appear in the main LSE exam timetable (for example those taken as part of Health, Policy, Planning & Finance)
- Exams for LSE students taking intercollegiate students who have IEAs in place.
- Exams for some General Course students. These exams will be run by the General Course team not the Exams and Course Choice Team.

LSE's campus is occasionally used by other institutions to run their own examinations. If you would like to book a room please contact lse.roombookings@lse.ac.uk. This is simply a space hire arrangement, the Exams and Course Choice Team cannot provide ANY assistance for bookings made by other institutions.

For more information please contact the Exams & Course Choice Team on exams@lse.ac.uk.
