

The latest social crises have shown how our institutions are very fragile. Our department's research provides crucial insight into how to strengthen our institutions and use these to reduce inequalities, without which it would be impossible to make progress on other SDGs.

SDG Sub-goals lacking progress that the International Development Department is actively contributing to:

ID scholars demonstrate how promoting the voice of developing countries and promoting appropriate legislation helps to reduce inequalities

10 REDUCED INEQUALITIES

- 10.3: Promoting appropriate legislation
- 10.6: Increased voice for developing countries in decision making
- 10.a: Differential treatment for developing countries in WTO

16 PEACE, JUSTICE AND STRONG INSTITUTIONS

- 16.3: Promote Rule of Law
- 16.6: Accountable and transparent institutions at all levels
- 16.7: Inclusive decision making at all levels
- 16.8: Participation of developing countries in the institutions of global governance
- 16.10: Ensure public access to information and protect fundamental freedoms

The Department explores how institutions which are transparent, inclusive, and participatory reduce corruption and promote rule of law

The International Development Department is the most ideally placed to tackle today's global inequalities and build sustainable futures because it tackles issues from a range of interdisciplinary perspectives, providing a truly comprehensive approach. This allows its experienced academics to study different institutions and offer solutions to various global issues institutions face.

Key Areas of Expertise
(Based on a keyword search of academics research from the department)

