

Grievance Policy and Procedure for Academic Support Staff

1. Policy

a) The aim of the School's Grievance Procedure is to provide a fair process for individual employees to obtain a speedy resolution to problems relating to their employment. This includes problems or concerns about work, management, working conditions, working relationships with colleagues, health and safety, new working practices, organisational change and equal opportunities. This procedure also applies to cases of alleged bullying and harassment, i.e. where an individual feels that they have been subjected to unwelcome and unwarranted treatment thereby causing him/her a detrimental effect or where an individual wishes to complain of behaviour directed at others that they find offensive.

b) One of the key aims of the policy is to enable the School to provide a working environment in which all employees feel comfortable and in which everyone is treated with respect and dignity, regardless of gender, sexual orientation, transgender status, marital or family status, colour, race, nationality, ethnic or national origins, creed, culture, religion or belief, age, disability or any other personal factor or quality.

c) Grievances can damage working relations and/or cause low morale or ill health, therefore both employees and managers have a responsibility to raise and deal with grievances as speedily as possible. The information disclosed should be treated in strict confidence as far as it is possible to do so.

d) Where possible concerns, problems or complaints should be raised at an early stage, informally proposing a possible solution with the immediate line manager, or the next most senior manager if the complaint is against the line manager, in order to try to resolve the issue promptly. Mediation using a third party may, subject to agreement, be an alternative option for informal resolution.

e) Where it is not possible or appropriate to resolve matters on an informal basis the formal procedure for handling a grievance should be used. This formal procedure should usually only be used when other attempts have failed, and not as the first option.

f) The objective of all grievance meetings will be to understand and seek to resolve the issue.

g) The School requires employees responsible for carrying out investigations of formal complaints to be trained beforehand or to seek advice and support from a trained colleague.

h) HR Division will monitor the use of the procedure across the School on an annual basis. The monitoring results will be reported to JNICC and the Equality and Diversity Group.

2. Scope of the Procedure

- a) This procedure applies to all Academic Support Staff groups.
- b) The definition of a manager for the purposes of this procedure is any member of the School, including Heads of Departments, with line management responsibility for one or more members of academic support staff.
- c) The definition of the investigator is the line manager or the person nominated by the line manager to carry out the investigation. If the line manager is the cause of the grievance then the investigator should be the line manager's manager.
- d) Subject to the agreement of all parties involved in the grievance, the procedure may be suspended at any stage for mediation or discussions to discuss options with the aim of promoting a more speedy resolution of the grievance.

3. Exclusions

- a) This procedure relates to all individual grievances concerning matters for which there are no separate agreed procedures. Therefore, it does not apply to:
 - collective disputes, a grievance brought by an appropriate representative for more than two employees involving two or more employees that that should be dealt with under the School's procedural agreement with the School's recognised trade unions;
 - matters which fall within the remit of the Public Interest Disclosure Procedure.
- b) Where a grievance is raised in connection with one of the procedures below, it will be considered under the School's Appeal Procedure.
 - Disciplinary and Dismissals Policy and Procedure for Academic Support Staff,
 - Capability – Performance Policy and Procedure for Academic Support Staff,
 - Capability - Health Policy and Procedure for Academic Support Staff,
 - Redundancy Procedure for Academic Support Staff.
- c) This procedure does not apply to grievances initiated after the end of employment.

4. Roles and Responsibilities

- a) Employees have a responsibility to:
 - raise a grievance with their manager within a reasonable amount of time;
 - clearly state the basis of their grievance and provide the manager with all relevant details (section 9b refers);
 - where possible, attempt to deal with the grievance informally before resorting to the formal stages of the procedure;
 - indicate what would be a satisfactory outcome to their complaint;
 - attend meetings held under the grievance procedure and provide therelevant details in relation to the grievance.
- b) Failure to comply with these responsibilities could prevent the School from offering support it might otherwise be able to provide.
- c) Managers have a responsibility to:

- deal with grievances promptly, fairly and consistently in accordance with the relevant procedure and with advice from the relevant HR Partner; clearly explain the reasons behind a decision in respect of a grievance and provide any necessary details if a hearing is held.
- consider whether a group grievance against an individual should be investigated on a separate or group basis.

5. Support and Advice

a) To ensure consistency of the application of this procedure, managers should seek the advice of the relevant HR Partner before making any decisions. The HR Partner, can also give advice on the practical application of the public sector equality duty.

b) Should an employee need assistance in setting out a grievance, the employee may seek advice from a trade union representative. HR Partners can provide general advice to employees on possible options and procedural advice but do not provide employees with specific advice relating to individual circumstances.

c) Subjects of a grievance who wish to seek advice in responding to the complaint against them should approach a work colleague or trade union representative. The relevant HR Partner is also available to provide advice on possible options and procedural advice where necessary but do not provide guidance on responding to a specific grievance.

d) Witnesses who are called to a grievance meeting may also seek procedural advice from the relevant HR Partner. Specific advice on the detail of the grievance should be sought from a work colleague or trade union representative.

e) ACAS also provide a helpline for employees who need advice in dealing with employment issues. The number is 08457 47 47 47 <http://www.acas.org.uk>.

f) Employees may also find it helpful to seek general support from a School network group for example: EMBRACE (Black and Ethnic Minority Staff Network), SPECTRUM (Lesbian, Gay, Bisexual and Transgender Network), Gender Equality Forum, Disabled Staff Network, Parents and Parents-to-be Network and Network for Carers of Adults.

g) The School has a duty of care to all employees who are the victims of bullying or discrimination and will provide support to any employee who believes they are a victim of such behaviour.

6. Mediation

a) Mediation is a process that involves the appointment of a third-party mediator, who will discuss the issues raised by the employee's grievance with all those involved and seek to facilitate a resolution for agreement by the parties. It may be requested or recommended at any stage in dealing with a grievance. However, while it is usually preferable for mediation to take place before formal grievance proceedings are commenced it may form part of the proposed remedies for the settlement of a grievance.

b) If mediation is an appropriate option, the parties should contact the relevant HR Partner. If the HR Partner agrees that mediation may help to resolve the grievance, the HR Partner will appoint an internal or external mediator to help towards a resolution.

c) Agreement to mediation does not preclude the employee from submitting a formal grievance either in parallel or subsequently, bearing in mind the responsibility to raise the grievance within a reasonable amount of time.

7. Formal Procedure

a) There are two main steps to the Formal Grievance Procedure:

1. Employee submits the statement of grievance form
2. Formal grievance meetings are held.

8. Setting out the Grievance

a) If informal attempts to resolve the issue do not do so to the employee's satisfaction or are considered inappropriate in the circumstances, the employee should progress to the formal stages of the Grievance Procedure by setting out their grievance in writing using the Statement of Grievance Form (Appendix 1) and submitting it to the relevant HR Partner with all relevant documentation, whilst retaining a copy for themselves.

b) The employee, the complainant, should set out the facts of the specific complaint in the Grievance Form including any examples in support of the complaint, any steps already taken to try to reach a solution and how the employee would like to see the matter resolved. Further particulars may be requested of the employee where the specifics of the complaint are not clear to the manager dealing with the grievance.

9. Dealing with the Grievance

a) On receiving the statement of grievance the HR Partner shall contact an appropriate person to act as the investigator who may be the line manager or a person nominated by the line manager within two working days. An example of where a person, other than the line manager, may be contacted to deal with the investigation in full or part is where the manager's predetermined commitments would lead to an unacceptable delay in dealing with the grievance. If the grievance is against the line manager, the line manager's manager or a person nominated by the line manager's manager will be contacted by the HR Partner. Awareness of the circumstances of the case shall not preclude an investigator from dealing with the grievance unless the grievance specifically relates to their behaviour. The employee who submits the grievance is hereafter referred to as the complainant.

b) The complainant shall be notified of the name of the investigator and the date for the initial meeting within five working days of the submission of the statement of grievance form. Wherever possible the meeting will be held within ten working days of the submission of the grievance at which they shall be given the opportunity of explaining their grievance, submitting any witness statements if appropriate, answering questions and suggesting how they would like the issue(s) resolved. Where it is not possible to hold the meeting within ten days of the submission of the grievance, the complainant will be informed of the reasons for the delay. If further details or examples emerge at the meeting that were not included in the original statement of grievance, the meeting may be adjourned and the individual asked to put these in writing to form part of the grievance. At the end of the meeting, the investigator shall sum up their understanding of the grievance, explain the proposed next steps and provide an estimate of the timescale. Where possible, a date for the next meeting shall be agreed.

c) The investigator will forward a copy of the completed Statement of Formal Grievance Form and any supporting documentation to the subject of a grievance and invite the person to a meeting. The person complained against will also be given the opportunity to respond to the grievance in writing within five working days of the request. Where it is not possible for the individual to respond within the timescale of five working days, the manager dealing with the grievance, with the advice of the relevant HR Partner shall consider a request for an extension and, if agreed, this will be communicated to the complainant.

d) If, after the initial meetings, the investigator dealing with the grievance decides to interview other members of staff, the investigator shall notify both the complainant and the person against whom the complaint has been made.

e) A work colleague or trade union representative may accompany the complainant who has submitted the grievance as well as the subject of the grievance at meetings. In cases of bullying and harassment people whose statements make reference to instances of bullying or harassment they have suffered may also be accompanied. Records of all meetings shall be typed up and sent to each individual to confirm they are accurate and to have the opportunity to correct any errors normally within two working days.

f) After receipt of confirmation or correction of the records of meetings, the complainant shall be given at least five working days' notice of the date, time and location of the second meeting. At the meeting, the investigator shall explain their findings to date listen to the complainant's comments and ask further questions of clarification. The meeting shall be adjourned for a short period to allow the investigator time to make a decision on the grievance and reconvened to communicate the decision to the complainant. The investigator shall also inform the person complained against of the outcome.

g) If further advice or information or further meetings with witnesses is required before the investigator is able to reach a valid decision, the investigator may choose to adjourn the meeting. Where delay in reconvening the meeting is unavoidable the investigator should inform the complainant as soon as possible.

h) The outcome of the grievance will be confirmed to the complainant in writing within five working days of the final meeting. The letter shall explain the right of appeal should the complainant not be satisfied with the outcome (see section 15).

i) Where the investigator is the person nominated by the line manager of the complainant, the investigator will inform the line manager of any relevant issues arising from the outcome of the grievance that need addressing in order to ensure effective management of the issues in the future.

j) The subject of a grievance shall be informed of the outcome and may request that this be sent to them in writing. The aforesaid person will not receive a copy of the full written statement of the outcome sent to the complainant.

k) The HR partner responsible for the grievance shall monitor the progress of the grievance. The partner shall inform the HR Director of any grievance not resolved 60 days after the submission of the grievance. If the HR Director believes there to have been undue delay they shall raise the issue with the relevant Head of Department/Service to promote a speedy conclusion.

l) Where the grievance arises from a change of work role or practices the way things were before shall prevail until the Investigator has determined the outcome of the grievance.

m) In the case of an allegation of bullying or harassment, where the Investigator has good cause to believe that there is a risk of further bullying or harassment they will inform the relevant Head of Department or Service (or their manager if they are the perpetrator) and require them to take interim steps, without prejudice to the eventual findings, to prevent any recurrence.

10. Right of Accompaniment

a) The complainant shall take all reasonable steps to attend meetings held in connection with the grievance and may be accompanied by a work colleague or certified trade union representative. Should the chosen companion be unavailable on the proposed date of the meetings, the complainant shall immediately request that the meeting is postponed once to another reasonable date and time that should be within five working days of the given date. Where this is not possible, the complainant shall choose an alternative person to accompany him/her to the meetings.

b) If the reason for the complainant or companion being unable to attend the meetings is for reasons that were unforeseeable at the time of arranging the meetings, the complainant will be notified of a new date, time and location by the trained investigator dealing with the grievance.

c) Should a complainant or other members of staff that the investigator decides to interview wish to be accompanied, it is their responsibility to notify HR of the name of their companion the chosen companion of the details including the date, time and location of the meetings as well as sending them the details and necessary documentation relating to their case.

d) The companion will be able to confer with the complainant during the hearing and will be allowed to address the hearing in order to put forward and sum up the complainant's case, respond on the complainant's behalf to any view expressed at the hearing and ask questions of clarification. The companion will not be able to answer questions on the complainant's behalf.

e) Complainants and the subjects of a grievance can choose to be accompanied at meetings by a work colleague or trade union representative subject to the chosen companion being able to attend on the proposed date.

f) External lawyers by profession, other than those who are employees of a recognised trade union, cannot act as companions under this procedure.

11. In Attendance

a) Formal meetings shall be chaired by the Investigator, who may be accompanied by a member of the relevant HR Partner acting as advisor and a second member of Human Resources, who will take a written record of the hearing.

b) The complainant will attend to present their grievance and answer questions of clarification in relation to the original written submission.

c) Given the variety of organisational arrangements within the School, some modification from this procedure may, on occasions, be necessary in terms of the selection of the Investigator.

12. Possible Outcomes of Grievance Meetings

If the grievance is upheld

a) The Investigator should decide what steps and related timescale should be taken to resolve the grievance or underlying issues and either implement the steps or report to the relevant manager with authority to make a decision on the grievance and implement the steps.

b) If the Investigator concludes there has been bullying or harassment they shall report this to the offender's line manager with a view to instigating appropriate disciplinary action. In the case of bullying and harassment there will be no presumption that the issue will be resolved by moving the person bullied or harassed. It will be the responsibility of the School to take such measures, wherever practicable, to enable them to continue their existing duties free of the fear or threat of further bullying or harassment.

If the grievance is not upheld

c) The investigator should report the outcome to the manager responsible for taking action and include in the report any steps that need to be taken to address any underlying issues that have been disclosed as part of the grievance.

13. Appeals

a) Complainants should refer to the separate Appeals Procedure for information about the right to appeal against decisions made in accordance with this procedure and the steps to be followed in doing so.

14. Grievance against the Director

a) Where the grievance is against the Director personally and the matter has not been resolved informally, the aggrieved member of staff may submit the Statement of Formal Grievance Form to Council through the School Secretary. The formal grievance will be considered and determined by a panel of three independent Lay Governors appointed by the Chair of the Court and Council. Any appeal will be determined by the Chair of the Court and Council him/herself and two independent Governors not previously involved in the grievance.
